Anaheim, California (May 1, 2007) Axis Technical Group, Inc. (Axis), a leading Information Technology Services company, announced today the opening of an off-shore development office in Pune, India. This office will compliment the existing Monterrey, Mexico facility in providing additional, cost-effective solutions in software development and maintenance. This office gives Axis the additional flexibility and resources it needs to help its clients increasing need to save money while reaching important technology objectives.

“We are ecstatic about being able to provide our customers an additional avenue to cutting project costs while maintaining direct access to the highest quality IT services and resources,” says Michael Valdes, Axis President and CEO. “Our new team in India shares the same vision and talent as our teams in Mexico and California, for leading the market in state of the art application development and architecture.”

Leading the team in India is Vikram Kotnis, a highly accomplished Software Development and Project Management professional. His extensive career includes expertise in Mortgage Finance systems and over 7 years of experience in the United States for various industry-leading corporations. Pune is a rapidly expanding technology center and home to the largest and most renowned university, Pune Institute of Technology. Contact information for the India Office:
